MOMMY MUST-HAVE:

Chomposable charms

Motherhood often results in a temporary accessory hiatus when you tire of futile attempts to prevent baby from pulling your earrings, licking your watch, and biting your necklace. Thanks to the seriously chic accessory line Chewbeads, however, you can add finishing touches to your ensembles and your wee one can safely gum your baubles to his heart's content. The beaded beauties are made of 100 percent silicone, can be easily washed with dish soap and water, and provide a soothing surface for teething tots to gnaw. Go ahead, layer on a few strands and strut your no-compromise mommy style. Chewbeads $30 each

Hesitation over radiation

Worried about the amount of radiation your bun in the oven is exposed to on a daily basis? Belly Armor's blankets, tees and bands shield babies-to-be from the non-ionizing radiation that emanates from mobile phones, computers, MP3 players and the other electronics that populate our lives. Made with RadiaShield fabric and high-quality textiles, these protective products may be just the peace of mind you're looking for. Belly Armor $69
